MINISTRY OF TRANSPORT AND AVIATION(Meteorological Department)New Delhi, the 12th August 1966Memorandum on the Rainfall of June and July and the Probable Amount during August and September, 1966*1. WEATHER IN INDIA DURING JUNE & JULY

June—A depression formed in the central Bay of Bengal on the morning of 2nd June with centre near lat. 15.0°N and long. 88°E moved northwestwards and crossed coast near Calingapatam by 3rd evening. Weakening into a trough of low pressure it moved slowly westwards across the Peninsula to east central Arabian Sea off the Mysore coast where it persisted on 7th and 8th. Thereafter it moved northwestwards and became unimportant by 13th. Under its influence, the southwest monsoon which had advanced into the Andaman Sea and over most parts of the South Bay of Bengal and the Arabian Sea up to lat. 8°N during the last week of May advanced further into south Kerala by 1st June which is about the normal date. It steadily advanced northwards to cover the entire Peninsula by the middle of the month. The monsoon also extended into Assam by 6th and into the remaining parts of north-east India by the middle of the month. While the rainfall activity over the Peninsula was moderate during the first fortnight, there was a prolonged spell of heavy rains in Assam leading to serious floods there during the second week. According to press reports, communication with Assam was completely cut off due to breaches and flooding caused by continued heavy rains and standing crops were damaged. About seven lakh people were reported to have been affected by the floods in Cachar district alone.

A well marked low pressure area lying over the north Bay of Bengal on 15th concentrated into a deep depression by the next morning with centre about 300 kms. south-east of Calcutta. Moving north-northwestwards it crossed the Sunderban coast during the night of 16th-17th and recurred northeastwards to Assam where it weakened by 19th. Another low pressure area which lingered over East Pakistan, Gangetic West Bengal and adjoining Bay of Bengal from 20th to 26th concentrated into a depression by 28th morning centred about 150 kms. south-southeast of Calcutta. Moving initially northwards and later northwestwards, it weakened over Bihar State. Under the influence of these two systems the monsoon was fairly active over most parts of northeast India. According to press reports, the flood situation in Cachar district, Manipur and Tripura worsened during the third week due to heavy rains.

Although the advance of the monsoon into Gujarat State and the central parts of the country was delayed by about a week, it made a rapid advance to cover the entire country outside west Rajasthan and the western parts of the Punjab during the third week when the seasonal low over West Pakistan and Rajasthan became well marked and active. Consequently there was excess rainfall over the central parts of the country, Uttar Pradesh and northwest India during this period. Thereafter the monsoon was feeble in west Madhya Pradesh and Rajasthan.

In association with an upper air cyclonic circulation persisting over Gujarat State and adjoining Rajasthan from 23rd to 25th there was fairly good rainfall activity in Gujarat State during the period. The monsoon remained generally feeble over the Peninsula during the second fortnight except for moderate rainfall along the west coast on a few days.

Rainfall for the month of June was in large excess in south Assam, Uttar Pradesh, the Punjab (including Delhi), Himachal Pradesh, east Madhya Pradesh and Rayalseema, in moderate excess in Orissa, Bihar Plateau, Saurashtra and Kutch, the Madras State and the Arabian Sea Islands and in slight excess in north Assam. It was normal in Gangetic West Bengal, Jammu and Kashmir, Rajasthan, west Madhya Pradesh and Gujarat Region, in slight deficit in Kerala, in large deficit in the Bay Islands, Vidarbha and Telangana and in moderate deficit over the rest of the country.

July—The monsoon continued to be feeble over the country outside northeast India, Uttar Pradesh and the Western Himalayas during the first week. According to press reports, due to the prolonged dry spell, acute water scarcity was experienced at many places in the Peninsula and the central parts of the country, particularly in the States of Gujarat and Maharashtra. A serious situation in regard to the supply of water to Bombay city and suburbs was also reported due to the absence of rains in the catchment areas of the lakes in the western ghats.

A low pressure area which had formed over east Uttar Pradesh on the last day of June moved eastnortheastwards to Sub-Himalayan West Bengal on 2nd and became less marked thereafter. Under its influence, the monsoon was fairly active over northeast India, east Uttar Pradesh and east Madhya Pradesh on the first three days of the month. Later the rainfall activity continued over Assam and Sub-Himalayan West Bengal but was less intense. According to press reports, Assam was in the grip of devastating floods once again with breaches of bunds of the Brahmaputra. An active western disturbance moving eastwards across northwest India caused good rainfall over the Western Himalayas. The monsoon also advanced further to cover the entire country by 6th.

A revival of the monsoon activity took place during the second week and the activity was evenly maintained for the rest of the month. A low pressure area developed over the south Peninsula on 8th and moving northwestwards, it lay as a trough of low pressure over the east central Arabian Sea off Mysore and south Maharashtra coasts by 11th. Thereafter it moved north-north-westwards and merged into the seasonal trough by 17th. Under its influence, the monsoon activity began to revive over Kerala from 10th and the activity extended northwards later and has maintained itself.

A low pressure area moving from the east into the north Bay of Bengal intensified into a depression by 17th morning with centre about 250 kms. east of Puri. Moving westwards it crossed coast near Paradeep the next morning and weakened into a low pressure area. The system thereafter moved westnorthwestwards across the central parts of the country and Gujarat State and merged into the seasonal low by 21st. This was followed by two low pressure areas which developed over the northwest and adjoining west central Bay of Bengal and moving inland merged into the seasonal trough over east Madhya Pradesh and Bihar Plateau respectively during the period 21st to 27th. The last system developed into a depression by the morning of 28th with centre about 300 kms. southeast of Calcutta and moving westnorthwestwards lay over northeast Madhya Pradesh centred near Sidhi on the last day of the month. Under the influence of these systems, the monsoon activity was evenly maintained over the country with well distributed rainfall over most parts of the country during the second fortnight. The monsoon was also active over the central parts of the country and north Peninsula during the last week.

The rainfall for the month of July was in large excess in Marathwada, in moderate excess in the Bay Islands, Sub-Himalayan West Bengal, Madhya Maharashtra, Vidarbha, coastal Andhra Pradesh, Telangana and the Madras State in slight excess in the Konkan, Rayalseema, South Interior Mysore and the Arabian Sea Islands. It was normal in north Assam, Orissa, Jammu and Kashmir, Gujarat Region, coastal and north Interior Mysore and Kerala, in slight deficit in south Assam, west Uttar Pradesh and the Punjab, in large deficit in Bihar State and east Uttar Pradesh and was in moderate deficit over the rest of the country.

June and July—The monsoon set in over south Kerala by 1st June which is about the normal date and over Assam during the first week. It progressed steadily northwards but its advance into Gujarat State and the central parts of the country was delayed by about a week. However, the monsoon made a rapid advance during the third week and covered the entire country by 6th July. The monsoon was quite active in Assam where two spells of devastating floods occurred in the second week of June and in the first week of July respectively. Weak monsoon conditions prevailed from the middle of June to about the 10th of July leading to serious water scarcity in many places in the Peninsula, Gujarat State and central parts of the country. The monsoon activity revived after 10th July and the activity was evenly maintained thereafter till the end of the month when there was well distributed rainfall over most parts of the country.

The rainfall during the months of June and July 1966 was in moderate excess in south Assam, west Uttar Pradesh, Rayalaseema, the Madras State and the Arabian Sea Islands, in slight excess in Himachal Pradesh, Marathwada and coastal Andhra Pradesh and normal in north Assam, Sub-Himalayan West Bengal, Orissa, the Punjab, Jammu and Kashmir, Gujarat Region, the Konkan, Madhya Maharashtra Vidarbha, Telangana and South Interior Mysore. It was in moderate deficit in the Bay Islands, Bihar Plains and east Rajasthan and was in slight deficit over the rest of the country.

The following table gives for each sub-division the total rainfall during the period, its departure from normal and the percentage departure from normal :—

2. CONDITIONS HAVING INFLUENCE ON THE RAIN OF AUGUST AND SEPTEMBER, 1966.

A foreshadowing of the monsoon rainfall of June to September was issued early in June. Recent data have been examined to see if any useful supplementary foreshadowing for the remainder of the season can now be given. The relevant data are the following :—

Indian Pressure in July—In July pressure was generally below normal over the entire country.

Indian Ocean pressure in July—At Mauritius pressure was in excess of normal by 0.5 mb.

South Rhodesia Rain—Rainfall from October 1965 to April 1966 was in defect by 128.0 mm.

South American Pressure—Pressure departures were as follows :—

	Buenos Aires	Cordoba	Santiago
June 1966	—4.1 mb.	—3.5 mb.	+0.7 mb.
July 1966	—1.3 mb.	—1.3 mb.	+0.4 mb.

Indo-Gangetic River Discharges—Mean departure of the total river discharges during April and May 1966 was in defect by 38 (10,000 cusecs).

3. INFERENCES FROM THE DATA :—

In foreshadowing the August and September rainfall in the Peninsula [taken to consist of Maharashtra, Gujarat, Madhya Pradesh, Interior Mysore North, Telangana and coastal Mysore (excluding South Kanara)], the chief factors in the order of decreasing reliability as judged from the available data are Mauritius pressure, Indian pressure, South American pressure and South Rhodesia rain. Of the factors Indian pressure is very favourable and South Rhodesia rain slightly favourable while Mauritius pressure and South American pressure are both unfavourable. The statistical analysis indicates that there is a four to one chance that the total rainfall of August and September 1966 in the Peninsula will lie above 86 per cent of the normal.

For Northwest India (taken to consist of the Uttar Pradesh, the Punjab, Himachal Pradesh, Delhi and Rajasthan), the factors used in the order of decreasing reliability, as judged by the available data are Indo-Gangetic river discharges, Indian Pressure, Mauritius pressure, South American pressure and South Rhodesia rain. This year South Rhodesia rain is favourable. Indian pressure and Indo-Gangetic river discharges are indifferent, Mauritius pressure moderately unfavourable and South American pressure very unfavourable. The statistical analysis indicates that there is a four to one chance that the total rainfall of August and September 1966 in Northwest India will lie below 109 per cent of the normal.

4. SUMMARY.

The total rainfall during August and September 1966 is likely to be normal in the Peninsula and slightly below normal in Northwest India.
